We have been engaging new models of formation for ordination and lay leadership developed by and with our native population. "Typical" models needed to be "indigenized" and developed to meet the needs of our native communities and not the needs of the colonial/institutional church.

Parishes throughout the Diocese are engaged in "Sacred Ground."

We continue the work of identifying land holdings by the Episcopal Church in native villages and restoring those holding to the village corporations.

Much of my recent public witness has been connected with land development concerns and climate change. Sovereignty for Alaska Natives (all people) is directly connected to the land. Those who are indigenous to the land are not empowered to make decisions about how the land is developed or not developed, this is a clear example of systemic racism and economic racism (capitalism vs subsistence). I have worked directly with the Gwich'in Steering Committee to support their efforts to preserve ANWR. I was asked to testify at hearing before the House Sub-committee on Natural Resources.

We have celebrated several Eucharists in Gwich'in while this translation work continues. A recent Diocesan Convention Eucharist was in Gwich'in.
Every Diocesan Convention includes table time for story telling. One of our challenges is that Diocesan Convention is often the only opportunity to gather together in the fullness of our diversity.
