From Bishop Robert Fitzpatrick:

The demographics of Hawai'i are: Asian: 37.75%; White: 25.01% (note that this includes a significant transient military population); Two or more races: 24.03%; Native Hawaiian or Pacific Islander: 10.08%; Black or African American: 1.85% (note that this includes a significant transient military population); Other race: 1.08%; Native American: 0.21%

In the past few years we have significantly increased the number of clergy who are "local" of Native Hawaiian, Asian and "hapa" (mixed race) heritage through both formation in seminary and a non-resident local program.

There has been a new diocesan initiative to support Hawaiian spirituality in the prison system and to help with transition out of prison (a disproportionate number of inmates are Native Hawaiian or Micronesian).

The Diocese supports Native Hawaiian in conflict around "land" issues (for example struggles around a telescope project on the island of Hawai'i).

We regularly provide training and conversation opportunities regarding Native Hawaiian culture, and current issues around sovereignty and indigenous peoples' rights.

The Bishop and most active clergy traveled to Mauna Kea to support the "protectors" blocking the construction of the TMT telescope. This included an education piece on Native Hawaiian sovereignty.

Fitzpatrick: As the Anglican/Episcopal Church in Hawai'i, we have a unique story in that we were invited and, therefore, have a historic relationship with the Hawaiian monarchy. We are just beginning to unpack what that means in relation to the dominate American culture. We claim Hawaiian cultural values as our own, but putting those into practice is our struggle.
